

INMARA

Bringing the world closer to you.

Discover everything around you.

1. The Concept

INMARA is a location-focused discovery platform designed to connect people with the world around them. Its purpose is to make nearby opportunities, businesses, products, services and places easier to discover from one central platform.

The concept goes beyond a traditional marketplace. INMARA is not limited to buying and selling products; it is intended to become a broad local discovery ecosystem where people can find what they need, and where local businesses and service providers can be discovered by people nearby.

2. What INMARA Brings Together

Products	Find products and local sellers.
Services	Discover people and businesses offering services.
Businesses	Explore local businesses and what they offer.
Food	Discover restaurants, food vendors and places to eat.
Beauty & Grooming	Find barbers, salons, beauty professionals and related services.
Hotels & Stays	Discover nearby accommodation.
Entertainment	Find activities, venues and entertainment around you.
More	Expand into other useful local categories as the platform grows.

3. The User Problem

People often know what they need but do not know what is available nearby, who provides it, how far away it is, what it costs, or whether other people recommend it. INMARA is built around solving that discovery problem.

For example, someone who needs a barber should be able to discover nearby barbers, compare relevant information such as services, ratings, distance and prices, and then choose what works best for them. The same principle can apply to a restaurant, product, hotel, repair service, shop, event or other local need.

4. The Core Vision

Make the world around every person easier to discover, understand and access.

INMARA aims to reduce the distance between people and the things, places and people they need. The platform should make the local world feel more connected and accessible.

5. Brand Identity

Brand name: INMARA

The name is inspired by the idea of “in my area” — emphasizing location, proximity and the world immediately around the user.

Brand promise: Bringing the world closer to you.

This expresses the larger ambition of INMARA: technology that makes the world around a person feel closer and easier to access.

Product message: Discover everything around you.

This explains the practical purpose of the platform in a simple way: users come to INMARA to discover what is available around them.

6. Brand Positioning

INMARA should be positioned as a local discovery platform and marketplace ecosystem, rather than simply an online shop.

Its identity should communicate three ideas at once: proximity (what is around me), discovery (what can I find), and connection (bringing people and local businesses closer).

7. The INMARA Experience

At its simplest, the experience should feel like asking: “What can I find, buy, book, eat, use, visit or do around me?”

The answer should come through relevant local results, categories, businesses, products and services, with useful information that helps users make decisions.

8. Long-Term Vision

The long-term ambition is for INMARA to become a trusted gateway to the local world — a platform where users discover opportunities around them and businesses gain a powerful way to reach nearby customers.

As the platform grows, the same concept can extend across cities and regions while keeping the central idea intact: bringing the world closer to each user.
